Forecast For Southwest England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Friday 14 May 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Drier for most, with less frequent showers than recently.

Today:
A cloudy start, with cloud gradually lifting through the day to allow for afternoon sunny spells. Scattered showers remain possible throughout, but these less frequent than recently. Feeling warmer than yesterday but becoming breezy, especially in Cornwall. Maximum temperature 15 deg C (59 deg F).

Tonight:
Showers clear east through evening, and cloud builds ahead of a band of more organised rain, heavy in places, that moves over the region from the southwest overnight. Winds strengthening. Minimum temperature 8 deg C (46 deg F).

Saturday:
A day of sunny spells and widespread showers, these heavy at times and occasionally thundery. Winds remaining breezy, and brisk along coasts. Maximum temperature 15 deg C (59 deg F).

Outlook for Sunday to Tuesday:
Remaining unsettled throughout, with sunny spells and showers. Sunday seeing the heaviest and most organised showers, with a risk of thunder extending into Monday. Lighter, less frequent showers after Sunday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.